

Terms and Conditions

Every effort has been made to ensure that the information contained in the SOAS University of London Prospectus is correct at the time of going to press. The University will use reasonable endeavours to deliver programmes and other services in accordance with the descriptions provided.

The University, however, reserves the right to make variations to programme contents, entry requirements and methods of delivery, and to discontinue, merge or combine programmes, both before and after a student's admission to SOAS, if such action is reasonably considered necessary.

In the event that, prior to the student commencing the first term of study for any programme described in this Prospectus, SOAS discontinues the programme, the student may either (1) withdraw from the University without any liability for fees; or (2) transfer to such other programme (if any) as may be offered by the University for which the student is qualified. If in these circumstances the student wishes to withdraw from the University and to enrol in a course at a different University, SOAS shall use its reasonable endeavours to assist the student.

Once the student has commenced the first term of study, if:

(a) the University's ability to deliver programmes or other services in accordance with the descriptions provided is compromised by circumstances beyond the control of the University (e.g. third party industrial action), the University will use all reasonable endeavours to minimise disruption as far as it is practical to do so;

(b) the programme is cancelled or substantially varied from that described in the Prospectus for reasons other than circumstances beyond the University's reasonable control; SOAS will use reasonable endeavours to provide a suitable replacement programme. If the student does not wish to accept the replacement programme, the student shall be entitled to withdraw from the programme. In the event of such withdrawal the University shall make an appropriate refund of course fees.
